Bangladesh has got boat schools because there is a lot of water in the country and when there is flooding the schools in the villages close. Boat schools travel from village to village. When all the students are on the boat, classes start.

On boat schools, there are tables and chairs and a bookcase with school books. There is only one computer, where students can go online. Children study in the morning. There isn't any food on the boat, so children finish school at lunchtime and go home.
